

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

HAVERFORD COLLEGE,
October 12, 1917

William Wilson Baker, professor of Greek at Haverford College since 1904, died on October 11, 1917, at the Notre Dame Hospital, Manchester, New Hampshire, to which he had been removed about three weeks ago, following a serious accident due to a fall, which necessitated an operation.

Professor Baker was born in Boston, Massachusetts, December 19, 1876. He graduated at Harvard in the class of 1898 and received his Ph.D. in classics in 1901, remaining at Harvard as instructor in Latin until 1904, when he was called to Haverford to take the place of S. K. Gifford, Haverford '76, head master of the Moses Brown School, Providence, Rhode Island. Professor Baker was preparing and had nearly finished an edition of Xenophon's Memorabilia for the Greek series of which Professor H. W. Smyth, of Harvard, was the general editor. He was prominent in the organization of the Main Line Forum, served for many years as election judge in the Coopertown District of Haverford Township, was formerly president of the Classical Club of Philadelphia, was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and while at Harvard was a member of the Delta Upsilon Club. He was also vice-president of the Classical Association of the Middle Atlantic states and a member of the Archaeological Institute of Philadelphia. He was prominent in the scholarly world as well as in the world of public affairs. He was always straightforward and fearless. The course "Greek A," known as the hardest course in Haverford College, was instrumental in attracting many of the best students to begin the study of Greek, and in this work he was unusually successful. He will be greatly missed by faculty, students, and the main-line residents, with whom he has worked in so many matters of importance to the welfare of the community.